Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER.

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.
ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan. 20, 1880.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spavin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of you agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours,
P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880.
B. J. KENDALL & CO., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me its will be very great.

Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE insure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a very deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callos, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO. Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

The Queen's Household.

The Clerk of the Kitchen has a salary of £700 a year and his board, and to aid him in his work he has four clerks, who keep all the accounts, check weights and measures, and issue orders to the tradespeople; he has also a messenger and a "necessary woman." Besides these officials of her Majesty's kitchen, there is the chief, with a salary of £700 a year, and four master cooks at about £350 per annum each—who have the privilege of taking four apprentices at premiums of from £150 to £200 each—two yeomen of the kitchen, two assistant cooks, two roasting cooks, four scoulers, three kitchen maids, a store-keeper, two "Green Office" men, and two steam apparatus men. And in the confectionery department there are a first and second yeomen, with salaries of £300 and £250, respectively; an apprentice, three female assistants, and an errand man; and, in addition to these, there are also a pastry cook and two female assistants, a baker and his assistant, and three coffee-room women. The ewer department, which has charge of all the linen, consists of a yeoman and two female assistants only. The gentleman of the wine and beer cellars—or, properly speaking, her Majesty's chief butler—has a salary of £500 a year. He has to select and purchase wines for the royal establishment, to superintend the decanting and send them up to table. Next to him are the principal table-deckers, with £200 a year each; the second table-decker, with £150; the third, with £90, and an assistant, with £52—their duties being to superintend the laying out of the Queen's table before dinner is served. The plate pantry is under the care of three yeomen—with salaries of £160, £150, and £120, respectively, besides lodging-money and board—a groom, and six assistants. These offices are of great trust and are not overpaid, seeing that at a rough guess the gold and silver plate at Windsor Castle alone is probably worth about £3,000,000 and includes some very precious specimens of art workmanship. The getting in of her Majesty's coal must be an important and arduous task, as no fewer than thirteen persons are employed all the year round on this duty alone.—Chamber's Journal.

An American Provincialism.

"Will you try," said my opposite neighbor, handing me a dish of potatoes, broken up in milk and butter, "will you try some of these fixings?" There are few words which perform such various duties as the word "fix." It is the Caleb Quotem of the American vocabulary. You call upon a gentleman in a country town, and his help informs you that he is "fixing himself" just now, but will be down directly, by which you are to understand that he is dressing. You inquire on board a steamboat, of a fellow-passenger, whether breakfast will be ready soon, and he tells you he should think so, for when he was below they were "fixing the tables," in other words laying the cloth. You beg a porter to collect your luggage, and he entreats you not to be uneasy, he'll "fix it presently," and if you complain of indisposition, you are advised to have recourse to doctor so and so, who will "fix you" in no time. One night I ordered a bottle of mulled wine at a hotel where I was staying, and waited a long time for it. At length it was put upon the table with an apology from the landlord that he feared it wasn't "fixed properly." And I recollect once, at a stage-coach dinner, overhearing a very stern gentleman demand of a waiter who presented him with a plate of underdone roast beef, "whether he called that fixing God Almighty's vittles."—Charles Dickens.

Fooling M. Thiers.

Spies do not always render services proportionate to the pay they draw, and their employers are no doubt often sorely vexed by the blunders they commit through overzeal. In 1872, when the Count de Chambord had gone to hold a sort of court at Antwerp, and was generally thought to be on the eve of getting restored to the French throne, M. Thiers sent spies to watch his movements. One of these was so ubiquitous that he ended by attracting the attention of two of the Bourbon Prince's supporters, who were young noblemen fond of fun. These gentlemen, keeping their eyes on the spy, found that he was in the habit of spending his evenings in a certain cafe on the Grande Place. Repairing to this establishment they seated themselves near to their man, and began talking about the Count de Chambord's doings in whispers just loud enough for the fellow to hear. The spy, of course, pricked up his ears, and soon he must have been convinced that he was discovering most valuable secrets. The young men related marvelous stories about the Prince's plans, the number of adherents he was gathering in France, and spoke of a grand coup d'état which was being prepared for him by a number of statesmen and Generals who hoped to take the country by surprise. In great excitement the spy flashed the news to Versailles, and M. Thiers, who had no wish to see the Count de Chambord restored, communicated them to his private organ, Le Bien Public. That credulous newspaper became remarkable during the next few days for publishing the most extraordinary news from Antwerp. Every day the spy had something new to relate out of what he picked up at his cafe, till at length one of his hoaxers having let fall a letter as if by accident, the spy discovered (as he fancied) an elaborate plot for kidnapping M. Thiers. The letter stated, in effect, that the Count de Chambord, having resolved to seize upon the throne, was going to have M. Thiers apprehended in the middle of the night by a certain General, whose name was mentioned, and that meanwhile another General would arrest M. Gambetta. M. Thiers was a fussy little man who had a great belief in plots, and on receipts of the tidings which apprised him that his liberty was in danger he must have experienced a moment's consternation; but before he could take any steps to prepare for the coup d'état, the Union, a Legitimist paper, published a chaffing letter from Antwerp, in which the hoax played upon the spy was related in detail. M. Thiers and the editor of the Le Bien Public (which always pretended to have no official connections) then looked very foolish. As for the spy, it may be doubted whether, on his return to Paris, he was received with smiling thanks.—Curculio Magazine.

FATHER BEESON, the Indian's friend, in a letter from Oregon, expressing his appreciation of our publications, writes: "I have spent twenty-five years and a fortune in behalf of justice for the Indians and have not yet got it. And if I had another fortune I would willingly spend it for the promotion of this prior object (referring to the education of the people in sexual subjects and heredity). I now see that the whites cannot be just toward the Indians until they learn to be just to themselves—their wives and children. I consider," says Father Beeson, "that right conception and right antenatal surroundings are the first necessities for true progress."

A DRUNKEN man lay half a day in a gutter unarrested in Springfield, Mass., because his big dog stood guard over him, growling and biting at everybody who came near.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Miss Lou. Scudder returned home on Monday after a pleasant visit to the country.

Mrs. Anna E. Davis, a charming young widow of Germantown, and Miss Fannie Walton, a beautiful blonde of the same place, are visiting Miss Mattie Coid, at Millwood.

Mrs. Anna Mooney, a charming and accomplished lady of Evansville, Ind., is the guest of the family of Mr. Charles Wheeler, of Mayslick.

THE Big Sandy Packet Company has notified shippers of tobacco along the river that the rate of freight is to be advanced. The boats have been carrying tobacco it at 50 cents a hogshead, which is regarded as too low a price.

THE steamer W. P. Thompson was sold by the Redden Brothers on Thursday to David Gibson to be used as a packet in the Chilo and Cincinnati trade. This ends the competition between the Return and the Thompson. The latter made her last trip on Monday. Moses Taylor will continue as clerk of the Thompson.

Wagoner Killed.

ON Monday afternoon a little after two o'clock, John Strasbough, a teamster living at Murphysville, fell from his wagon near the first toll-gate on the Lexington turnpike, and the wheels passing over his body he was fatally injured and died in about three quarters of an hour. The unfortunate man was married and leaves a wife and eight or nine children.

THE Mason County Historical Society has received inquiries of the friends or relatives of Zachariah Moore, who volunteered in the war of 1812 from the vicinity of Limestone, and after serving faithfully, on his return home in the spring of 1813 or 1814, was taken sick and died near Treber's old tavern, Adams county, Ohio. The citizens in the vicinity of his place of burial propose to erect a monument in his memory and for this purpose ask information of the relatives and friends of the family.

A NIGHT HORROR.

An Unprecedented Fall of Rain Floods the Streams--Houses and the Sleeping Inmates Swept Away.

Nine Persons Drowned, including an entire Family with a Single Exception.

Railroad Trestle and Many Bridges Swept Away--General Destruction of Property.

Loss in the County Estimated at $1,000,000

The most terrible calamity that has ever occurred in this part of the State happened this morning between one and two o'clock. A heavy rain began about eleven o'clock last night and increasing in violence flooded all the streams in the neighborhood so that they run out in such volumes that everything in their course was either swept away or destroyed. Nine lives were lost and it is estimated the damage in the city and county will amount to at least a million dollars. The details of the casualties are as follows so far as ascertained:

The center support to the railroad bridge over Limestone creek near the depot was swept away and the structure partly wrecked.

A tenement house on the premises of Mr. A. Honan on Limestone creek, occupied by the family of Isham Hazelrig, colored, was carried away by the waters. His wife and mother were drowned. Mr. Honan's loss is about $1,200.

J. C. Owens & Co., proprietors of the coal elevators had carried away from the landing by the flow out of Limestone creek three coal barges containing about 33,000 bushels and a barge with 1500 barrels of salt. These will be recovered.

At the jail lot on Third street the brick work of the new culvert was carried away by the force of the water passing through the old part and much other damage done. It is now thought that the lot will have to be abandoned and another site selected.

At the brick row on the hillside, Third street, all the cellars and basements were flooded with mud and water. These houses were occupied by Charles Sadler, E. D. Nute, Mrs. McDowell, S. R. Brooks and Mrs. Givens.

The water pouring down the Lexington pike near the above place, broke through the residence of James Redman and damaged his carpets, furniture and other household property to the amount of about $50. The house adjoining belonging to Mrs. Trout and occupied by Benjamin Smith and James Skinner was flooded also, and the floors covered with mud several inches deep. The loss to each will be about $50.

The residences of James Rains, Wm. Rudy and Charles Miner were flooded and more or less damaged.

While the flood was at its height Mrs. Eliza Johnson who lives near the jail lot, discovering one of her tenants in danger of drowning went to warn the family, and while making her way over the roof of the house, fell and dislocated her shoulder and ankle. The damage to her property was light.

The warehouse at the corner of Wall and Second streets, belonging to Charles Downing was flooded to the depth of about sixteen inches. It contained about 103,000 pounds of tobacco. About 20,000 pounds belonging to Mr. Downing were injured. His loss will be in the neighborhood of $6,000. In the same building were 3,000 pounds of tobacco belonging to Dr. Lawwell, of Mayslick which was damaged to the amount of about $150.

Moses Daulton's livery stable and Philip Wheelers shoe store were flooded also and considerable damage done.

The lower story of Ammons photograph gallery was flooded with water and mud.

The basement of Dr. G. W. Martin's house was partly filled with water and mud, and damaged to the amount of probably $50.

James Smith's premises were damaged by water and mud and also every house in Grave alley. The damage there will reach about $500.

The culvert near Wm. Bateman's on the Flemingsburg turnpike two miles from Maysville, was destroyed, also the bridge over Stony Hollow in the same neighborhood.

Lovell's slaughter house on the Flemingsburg turnpike near Maysville was totally wrecked and carried away.

On the Hill City turnpike near the almshouse, a building occupied by Amanda Green, colored, was swept away with the woman in it. She was rescued by J. B. Noyes, near his residence.

The bridge near the slaughter house in the lower part of the city, was carried away and the one at Adams' distillery so much injured as to be unsafe.

All of the turnpikes going out of the city are more or less damaged in places.

The bridge over Beasley's Run was destroyed, also the bridge on the Kenton Station turnpike.

The mouth of the culvert at the foot of Wall street was broken away and the grade much damaged.

Joseph H. Dodson lost a coal barge and float.

About half an acre of ground at the mouth of Limestone creek was washed away.

LAWRENCE CREEK

On Warren's Run, a tributary of Lawrence Creek, a building on the farm of Geo. L. Forman, occupied by Speed Bogie, a colored man, was swept away and all of his family, consisting of his wife, his mother and five children, were lost. One of the latter was an infant about three weeks old. The house stood in the creek bottom with one of the doors opening up the creek and the other down. The family were all asleep, and Bogie aroused by the noise of the rushing waters, ran to the lower door to ascertain what it was, and an instant later the building and all those inside were swept away, he barely escaping with his life. Up to this time only one of the bodies has been recovered.

At the farm of Geo. L. Forman, four miles of stone fencing on Lawrence Creek, were swept away.

The bridge over Lawrence creek was destroyed.

James Chamberlain's barn, containing two horses, wagons, farming utensils etc., was swept away. The horses were drowned.

A barn belonging to Mr. Scott containing hay, oats, etc., was destroyed.

Wm. Chamberlain lost a barn and contents.

A barn belonging to James Chandler, containing $600 worth of tobacco was wrecked and carried away.

The destruction in others part of the country has doubtless been great, but the above particulars are all that we have been able to obtain at this time.

ABERDEEN.

The culvert on the Zanzerville and Maysville turnpike becoming damaged broke and carried off a large barn, the property of Oscar Brookover and also, Parker Bradford's slaughter house.

The damage at California, three miles back of Aberdeen is very great. Nearly every person in town sustained some loss. Cellars were filled with water everywhere. The houses of Moses Jones, James Newton, Mrs. Pogue, A. Soerries, Mrs. Hester Wilson, Mrs. Tumbling and others were flooded, and some of them four feet high.

Ferry street is cut away fearfully. Wm. Ellis' cellar, on Front street filled with water before anything could be taken out, also the cellar of L. C. Reidle.

A lot of hogs were drowned at Fishing Gut Creek, and crops much damaged.

The loss in town will reach about $6,000, and it will take $1000 to replace the culvert.

The moonlight fete announced to take place at Aberdeen this evening, on account of the weather, has been postponed until Monday.

George Robinson, of Montgomery, Ind., jumped from a swift train, a few miles west of Layfayette, and was found dead beside the track.

An Awful Omen in Rome.

Tacitus records that just prior to the breaking out of the insurrection of the Iceni, headed by their heroic Queen Boadicea, the Roman subjugators of Britain were alarmed by unequivocal indications of an approaching storm. "At Camalodunum the statue of Nero fell to the ground and turned its back where the face had been, as if it fled before the enemy. Women were seen as if mad, singing wild songs, in which they foretold the destruction of the colony. Strange noises were heard in the House of Assembly, and loud howlings in the Theater. In the estuary of the Thames there was an appearance like that of a sunken town. The sea assumed the color of blood, and human forms appeared to be left on the shore by the ebbing tide." These terrible portents were remembered by the Romans long after the rout of the Iceni and the death of their warrior Queen somewhere between the sites of Coldbath-fields Prison and the terminus of the Great Northern Railway. That the existing age, however, obstinately refuses, as a rule, to attach any belief to portents, and wholly disregards the croakings of ravens, be they never so hoarse, from battlements, the hooting of owls, and other premonition from the brute creation, Italian patriotism might be slightly alarmed by an occurrence which has taken place at Rome. On the occasion when the anniversary of King Victor Emmanuel's death was commemorated, and as the lengthy procession was streaming down the Capitoline Hill on its way to the Pantheon, there was heard, high above the clangor of the brass bands, a strange and dismal howling. Whence came this lugubrious ululation? Was it the voice of the Cumaean Sibyl, hovering in mid air, invisible to the multitude, but making audible her never ending moan over the conflagration of the Capitol in which the books that she sold to Tarquin were destroyed? After a while the source of the howling was traced. For a very long time a fierce controversy has raged among antiquaries as to whether the celebrated bronze figure of a wolf, called by Byron "the thunderstricken nurse of Rome," in the Museum of the Capitol, is the wolf mentioned by Dionysius and Livy, or the animal whose effigy is cited by Cicero. Apparently with a view to bringing these polemics to a close, the Municipality of Rome have in recent years caused to be excavated, in the rocky side of the Capitoline, a den in which accommodation has been provided for two live wolves. They are obviously, could they become articulate, entitled to dub themselves respectively the Ciceronian and the Dionysian wolves; but, as a matter of fact, the unfortunate beasts, pent up in cheerless captivity, are not unaccustomed to relieve their exasperated feelings by shrieks and yells, which probably culminated in ear-splitting howls under the intolerable provocation of patriotic hymns from an indefinite number of brass bands, playing, as Italian brass bands usually do, villainously out of tune. —London Telegraph.

Equal to the Emergency.

A young woman while going from her home to a postoffice, was accosted by one of the la-da-da gentry, who asked if he might accompany her down town. She objected and commanded him to leave her. The rowdy still followed her and she sought refuge in a neighboring house. In a few minutes, thinking the way clear, she started out for her destination. When in the postoffice she recognized her assailant, and he followed her out. When on the sidewalk he stepped to her side and inquired: "Are you from Canada?"

"No," she replied, "I'm from Ireland;" and with this last remark she dealt him a stunning blow in the face, felling him to the sidewalk.

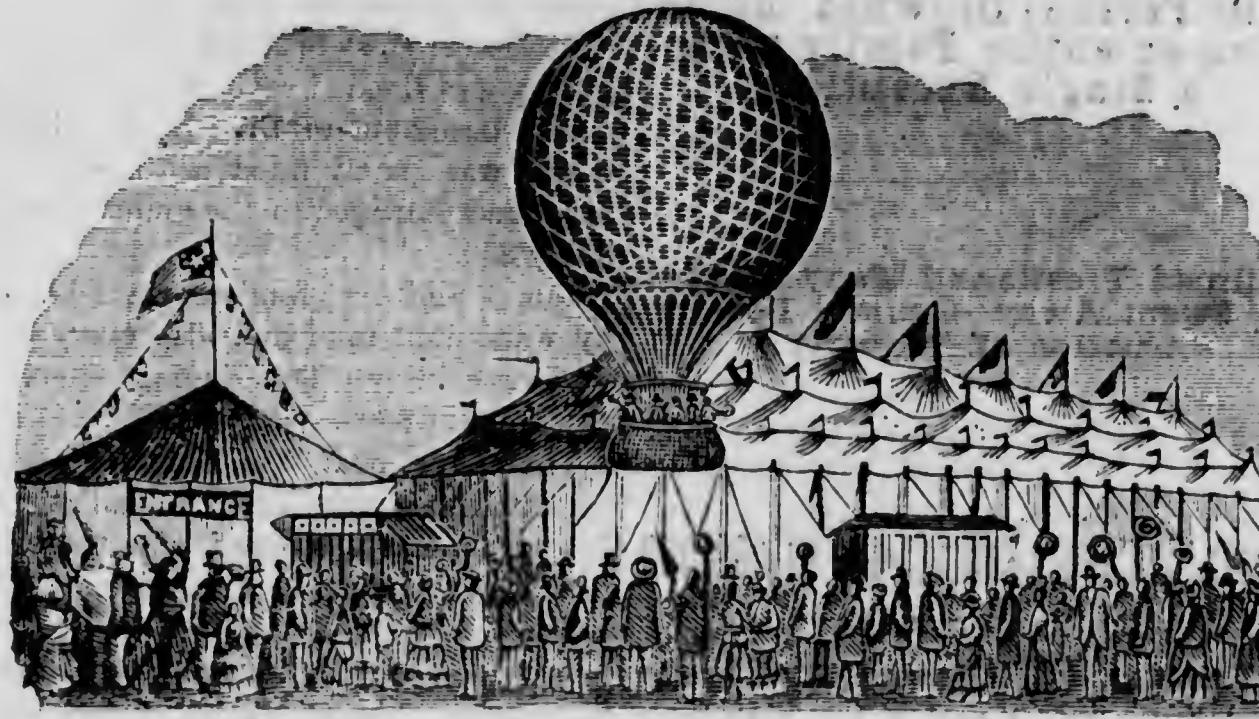

"My God," cried a woman who witnessed the act, "have you killed him?"

"I don't know," answered the young lady as she walked on. After reaching her home she discovered that her hand and sleeve were covered with blood, and she then concluded that she left a mark on the impudent fellow's phiz.—Bay City (Mich.) Tribune.
